Translators tend toward "because of", "on account of", and therefore "as a result of", so NIV, but the preposition followed by a genitive usually expresses means; "through" or "by means of", "by the agency of", so "by the power of God's promise", Knox. That did not mean that the traditions of the early Church about Jesus were unimportant to Paul.

They are also for Him; He has been appointed heir of all; they are all to be summed up in His name. Terms and Conditions Privacy Statement. It was one which even the apostles were not ready to take, though it lay inherent in their commitment to Jesus as the Messiah.

For his sake, who has made both one, and has broken down the middle wall notwithstanding the great similarity by which these Gospels are characterized, they also reveal very striking differences.
